Volume 43, Issue 1  March 2012

Special Issue: Biography and Life-Writing
Editors: Richard Broome and Diane Kirkby
Guest Editors: Tanya Evans, Robert Reynolds and Tom Roberts

Introduction

Notes on Contributors

ARTICLES
Doug Munro
Biographies of Historians – or, The Cliographer's Craft

Sheridan Palmer
The Importance of Leitmotifs and Distance in the Biography of Bernard Smith

Desley Deacon
Celebrity Sexuality: Judith Anderson, Mrs Danvers, Sexuality and 'Truthfulness' in Biography

Judith Brett
Alfred Deakin’s Childhood: Books, a Boy and his Mother

Robert Reynolds
Trauma and The Relational Dynamics of Life-History Interviewing

Leigh Boucher
Old Questions and 'New Biography': Labour Activism, William Murphy and Racialisation in 1880s Victoria

Jill Roe
Biography Today: A Commentary

EXHIBITION REVIEW

Elisabeth Findlay
Two Faces: The National Portrait Gallery and Academia

REVIEWS
Australian Historical Studies

EDITORIAL BOARD

Chair:
Professor Shula Marks, Australian Catholic University

Editor:
Professor Richard Broome, History Program, La Trobe University
Professor Dave Breen, History Program, La Trobe University

Editorial Assistant:
Dr Matthew Horvath, University of Melbourne

Business Manager (Finance):
Deo Sean Scalmi, University of Melbourne

Review Editors:
Dr Tony Ballin, Deakin University
Associate Professor Kate Holmes, La Trobe University
Dr Bart Zim, Deakin University

Editor (Exhibitions):
Dr Kylie Message, Australian National University

ISSN 1031-461X
Typepad by Datapage (India) Private Limited, Chennai, India
Printed and bound by Markono Print Media, Pte Ltd, Singapore.

Cover illustration: Joan Fontaine and Judith Anderson in Rebecca (1940). © Sunset Boulevard/Corbis

Australian Historical Studies is a refereed journal publishing original and previously unpublished (online or hard copy) articles. First published in 1940, it is now one of Australia’s oldest, best-known and most highly-regarded academic journals, which ERA rate as A. It receives contributions from leading academics in the field. It is published in March, June and December each year.

Australian Historical Studies deals with all aspects of the history of Australian-New Zealand, and Pacific regional issues and with other histories insofar as they significantly inform the understanding of this history. All varieties of history are welcomed.

General correspondence should be addressed to the editorial assistant at:

Australian Historical Studies
School of Historical Studies
University of Melbourne
Victoria 3010 AUSTRALIA
Tel: +61 3 8344 5964
Email: ahs-history@unimelb.edu.au

All submissions should be made online at the Australian Historical Studies Manuscript Central site http://mc.manuscriptcentral.com/rahs. New users should first create an account. Once logged onto the site, submissions should be made via the Author Centre. Online user guides and access to a helpdesk are available on this website.

Authors should prepare and upload two versions of their manuscript. One should be a complete text, while in the second all document information identifying the author should be removed from files to allow them to be sent anonymously to referees. When uploading files authors will then be able to define the non-anonymous version as “File not for review”.

1. Within the text, numbers and ordinals up to one hundred are spelled out: twenty-five, fiftieth anniversary.
2. Numbers over one hundred are given in figures (276), except for round numbers (fifty thousand). Use figures with a succession of numbers: 16 trackos, 5 smocks, 102 stockings.
3. For percentages write 91 per cent, not 91%.
4. Put any interpolations in square brackets.

Australian Historical Studies
a journal of Australian History

Manuscript Submission & Presentation

1. All submissions should be made online at the Australian Historical Studies Manuscript Central site (http://mc.manuscriptcentral.com/rahs). New users should first create an account. Once a user is logged onto the site submissions should be made via the Author Centre.

2. Authors should prepare and upload two versions of their manuscript. One should be a complete text, while in the second all document information identifying the author should be removed from files to allow them to be sent anonymously to referees. When uploading files authors will then be able to define the non-anonymous version as “File not for review”.

3. The manuscript should be double-spaced throughout, including indented quotes and endnotes.

4. Manuscripts that exceed 8,000 words in length, including endnotes, will not be accepted.

5. The article will need to be preceded by a brief abstract of no more than 100 words.

6. References should be supplied as endnotes, not footnotes.

Use of Capitals

1. Other than for proper names, use capitals only when suitable short titles, including author’s surname and key words from title of book, chapter/article or thesis. Darian-Scott, The Macquarie Concise Dictionary indicates that it is no longer considered uncommon.

References

1. Use the form of citation recommended by the Chicago Manual of Style, (humanities), with the exceptions already noted; that is: use single quotation marks rather than double ones; use full stops after abbreviations but not after contractions; and close quotations before the final punctuation mark.

Books:
The first citation should contain: author’s initial(s) or given name(s) as used on the title page, surname, title of book, place of publication, publisher, year of publication, and page reference if appropriate. The subtitle is capitalised and follows a colon. The place of publication is a city; a state is capitalised. Darian-Smith, On the Home Front: Melbourne in Wartime, 1939–1945 (Melbourne: Melbourne University Press, 1990), 5–6.

Articles in journals/chapters in books:

Unpublished material:
In the first citation the general rule is to cite the document first, followed by the name of the collection and the file number, then the name and location of the archive. A W. J. Jose to Director War Staff, 19 March 1919, C.E.W. Bean Papers (hereafter Bean Papers), folder 115, Australian War Memorial (hereafter AWM), Canberra.

Theses:

Subsequent References: